Of Interest To Veterans

A new Veterans Administration computer program to speed checks to GI Bill students is expected to become operational during August, the Roanoke VA Regional Office announced today.

When VA receives separation papers from the military, computers will generate a package of papers to be sent to the veterans. These include a Certificate of Eligibility - required when applying for any VA benefit - an application for education or training, and a form for school to use to certify enrollment. Previously, each of these items required a separate step for students or schools.

The package also will inform veterans of their remaining GI Bill eligibility time, about counseling and tutorial services how to apply for educational assistance, and about courses that may be selected for training.

VA said that under this new concept, veterans can complete the application and present it, along with the eligibility certificate, to school officials at the time of registration.
